

New options offer extra flexibility for your DaaS transaction

HP Financial Services can help customers find new ways to plan for, acquire, consume and adapt the technology needed for workplace transformation.

HP Device as a Service (DaaS) simplifies how commercial organizations equip users with the right hardware, support, device management, and lifecycle services to get the job done. And now that efficiency comes with an extra dose of flexibility.

Introducing new flexible payment plans that help align your technology investment to your business' unique needs.

Flex Up/Flex Down

Increase or reduce the number of devices, along with related services, during the term of your HP DaaS agreement.

Flex Up

- Add assets to your existing contract choosing either:
 - Coterminous – the new assets are due for refresh at the same time as the original devices
 - Add-on-as part of a new contract, the assets are due for refresh at a later date than the original devices

Flex Down

- Select Flex Down option at the beginning of the contract; choose 5%, 10% or 15% of fleet eligible for return
- Can return hardware and associated software and services after the first 12 months of contract and before the last two months
- Monthly payments are reduced by the equivalent amount for the returned hardware and services
- Minimum deal size: $100K USD Suspend payments for up to three months each year during your business' slow period.

Seasonal payments

Suspend payments for up to three months each year during your business' slow period.

How it works

- Specify the months you wish to suspend payments (up to three months and the same months each year)
- Minimum transaction size: $100K USD
- Eligible for Fair Market Value lease contracts on 36, 48, 60 month terms
- Payments spread evenly across the rest of the months
