

HP Global Tax Policy

HP Inc. is a leading global provider of personal computing and other access devices, imaging and printing products, and related technologies, solutions, and services. We sell to individual consumers, small- and medium-sized businesses and large enterprises, including customers in the government, health, and education sectors. We have three reportable segments: Personal Systems, Printing and Corporate Investments. The Personal Systems segment offers commercial and consumer desktop and notebook PCs, workstations, thin clients, commercial mobility devices, retail POS systems, displays and other related accessories, software, support, and services. The Printing segment provides consumer and commercial printer hardware, supplies, solutions and services, as well as scanning devices. Corporate Investments include HP Labs and certain business incubation and investment projects.

HP, through the use of proper governance and management oversight, maintains appropriate policies to ensure compliance with all tax laws and regulations within all the countries and territories in which we do business. HP believes in transparent and constructive relationships with all relevant tax authorities and recognizes that developing and maintaining those effective working relationships with tax authorities is a critical part of our tax risk management program. HP believes in transparency and support those initiatives that increase transparency in national and international tax regimes while also further fostering public trust. HP interprets the relevant tax laws and regulations of all countries and territories in which we operate in a reasonable way while consistently following both the intent and the letter of all applicable tax laws and regulations.

HP recognizes the global importance of transfer pricing policy and ensuring that transfer pricing policy operate in accordance with the arm's length principal while also ensuring tax payments are made appropriately to locations that contribute value. HP is committed to ensuring the timely filing of tax returns and remitting tax payments.

HP is a responsible and compliant taxpayer and strives to provide the statutorily required disclosures to the tax authorities in each country or territory in which we operate. HP's tax policies are managed to protect the Company's wider corporate reputation in line with its overall high standards of governance. HP's tax governance includes appropriate tax controls and documentation all of which are regularly audited by internal audit.

HP's global tax policies and governance are reviewed periodically in light of changes to the business including how and where the business operate; tax laws and regulations; and new or developing business and tax risks.